- 1  6.02 Listen. Which part is Marc going to play in the new show?

Diversicus is in South Korea. This morning everyone's practising for the new show, 'World of Work'.

- 2  6.03  Watch the video. Say the chant.

- 3 Describe a job to a partner. Play a guessing game.

A person who repairs cars.

I think it's a mechanic.

Watch the video. What did Ivan buy?

1 So, we're in South Korea. What's it famous for?

Yeah! And in South Korea they use a lot of robots, don't they?

They invented K-pop music, didn't they?

2 You're both right, but let's look at robots first.

Jenny, Dad's got a robot in the kitchen, hasn't he?

Yes, but it doesn't look like a person.

3 Robots don't always look like people, do they?

No, they don't. Robots can be any shape or size.

At home, we've got one which cleans the floor. It hasn't got arms or legs.

4 They're designing robot teachers, aren't they, Dad?

Yes, they are, but they aren't ready yet. Now, this afternoon we're all going to see some robots!

5 Look! That robot's playing the violin.

Yes, but it can't play a tune as well as a real musician, can it?

6 That's the biggest robot in the world, isn't it?

No, but it can lift cars. It's as strong as Ivan.

Hmm. Oh, look over there.

7 Look! This puppy can walk, can't it?

Yes, it can. And it can play with a ball!

You aren't going to get one, are you?

8 You didn't buy a puppy, did you?

Yes, I did. He's so cute, I couldn't leave him there, could I? Come on, Mr Barker! Walkies!

Listen and read. Then answer the questions.

An invention begins as an idea. Then other people find ways to make that invention better. Our machines are always changing. Not very long ago, we thought of robots as science fiction, but robots are already part of our lives.

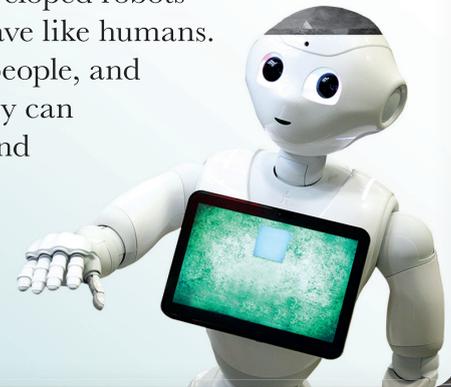

Robots are machines that can do the actions of a human. At first, most robots did boring or dangerous work in factories, like putting parts of cars together or putting chocolate bars in boxes ready to go to the shops. They could repeat the same action all day and never get bored. Those robots didn't need a human to control every action. Other robots need human control. For example, doctors use robots to help them operate on very small body parts. We use robots to test planes and cars. We also have robots which can clean our homes. Some robots drive special cars which don't need a driver and there are even robots on Mars!

Scientists have developed robots that look and behave like humans.

They can talk to people, and scientists think they can help in hospitals and schools one day.

Do you think it's possible that your future teachers will be robots?

What are robots?

How can robots make life easier?

What do doctors use robots for?

What dangerous jobs do robots do?

Talk to a partner about a robot that you would like to invent.

How will it help us?

What will it look like?

What kind of energy does it need?

Who will want to use this robot?

6.12

Listen and read. How many of these inventions do you use? Which is the most useful to you? Why?

South Korea is a country in Asia. It isn't a large country, but more than 50 million people live there. South Korea is one of the most modern and developed countries in the world, with a very important electronics industry.

South Korea also has some of the most interesting ideas in the world of technology. You probably use many of these inventions every day, but did you know that they come from South Korea?

For example, have you got a mobile phone or a tablet? South Korean scientists invented the touch screen. Before this invention, people had to press buttons or use a special kind of pen to give instructions to the machine. It's much easier to give the instructions with your fingers.

South Korea also invented the first MP3 player. In the past, people collected big round records or cassettes of their favourite music. The invention of the MP3 player was the beginning of mobile digital music. You can now take your music with you and listen to it anywhere: on a bus, on a train or in bed. In the past you could take your music with you, but the machines were big and uncomfortable to carry.

Technology is not just for fun. Inventors in South Korea have also created things that really help people. For example, there is now software to help people who cannot see well. You can put the software on your tablet, and it translates the text on an e-book to Braille for you. This means that anyone at school, university or at work can study and work in any job they want to. You can see why South Korea is so important in the world of technology, can't you?

Use the internet to find out about inventions from your country.

mission 3

Prepare for a job interview

Find out what inventions people use in your job. Complete the table.

Inventions pilots use	Why?
Virtual reality	to learn how to fly a plane
GPS	to get to the destination and land safely
Radar	to see where other planes are in the sky

Listen and read. How does Buddie help Seo-Joon?

Buddie has fun

The year was 2076 and Buddie was a robot teaching assistant. He could do impossible maths problems, but he found humans more difficult to understand.

'If $x=5.672$ and $y=93.62$, then $z=673.456$,' said Buddie. But the class wasn't listening. 'This is boring,' someone said. 'Can't we do something fun?' Buddie thought for a minute. 'Buddie doesn't understand "fun",' he said. The students laughed. 'Hey, you've hurt his feelings,' a student called Seo-Joon said. But this made them laugh more. 'He hasn't got any feelings!' they said.

Afterwards, Seo-Joon said to Buddie, 'I'm sorry they were mean to you. Don't be sad.' 'Buddie doesn't understand "sad",' Buddie replied. 'Never mind,' Seo-Joon said, and he added, 'I didn't understand the maths problem today. It was very difficult.'

'Was it?' said the robot. 'Buddie can help you with it.'

'Can you?!' Seo-Joon said, happily. 'Thank you, Buddie!'

Buddie explained it and suddenly it didn't seem so difficult. 'I understand now: $25/35$ is the same as $5/7$ so $25/35 - 5/7 = 0$!' Seo-Joon said happily.

'Well done. It's easy, isn't it?' said Buddie.

'Yes!' said Seo-Joon.

At that moment, Seo-Joon's friends walked past the door of the classroom. 'Hey, Seo-Joon, we're going to play on our hoverboards in the playground. You'll come with us, won't you?' they said. 'Sure!' he replied. 'Do you want to come Buddie? It'll be fun!'

'Buddie wants to understand fun. Buddie will come with you,' the robot replied.

They played for the next hour without stopping until finally Seo-Joon said, 'It's nearly dinner time. I have to go home.'

'OK,' said Buddie. 'But we can play again tomorrow, can't we? That was fun!'

'It was, wasn't it?' said Seo-Joon. 'You see Buddie, you can understand fun!'

On Monday morning, Seo-Joon's classmates were complaining. 'Time for another boring class with Buddie.' But Buddie said, 'Today we're going to start class with a fun game.'

'Yaaaaay!' the class cheered.

1 How is Seo-Joon a good friend to Buddie?

2  Read the text. Choose the right words.

Technology in Schools

In the past, there was no technology in schools. Classrooms had (1) board, some desks and chairs for the students and nothing more. Today, there are lots (2) different technologies which teachers and students can use. (3) classrooms have interactive white boards and projectors. Teachers can show pictures and videos (4) lessons, and they can make learning games for their students. These changes make learning easier and more fun (5) in the past. In the future, schools (6) continue to change. Maybe one day, we'll even see robots in the classroom!

1 Prepare for a job interview.

Find out what you need to study to do your chosen job.

Make a list of the skills and work experience you need.

Write interview questions.

Practise the job interview.

What did you study at university?

2 Describe the job and do the interview.

- 1 Describe the job and what skills you need.

I am a pilot. Pilots need to study maths and science.

- 2 Give the interviewer your list of skills and experience. Read.

You've worked as a pilot, haven't you?

Yes, I have. I know how to use GPS and radar.

Do you?

- 3 Did you get the job? Let the class decide!

- 1 Read the replies to the teacher's question. Then cover the text and try to remember as many as you can.

The screenshot shows a school blog interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with a logo, the title 'School BLOG', and a 'Sign out' button. The main content area has a question in a white box: 'What will you do DIFFERENTLY this month?'. Below this are ten replies, each in a colored box (orange or green) and accompanied by a small cartoon icon. The replies are: Betty (reading news), David (learning snowboard), Holly (repairing bike), Frank (preparing lunch), George (going to dentist), Oliver (sending messages), Richard (preparing uniform), Sarah (not being late), Sophia (not getting angry), and William (helping parents).

What will you do DIFFERENTLY this month?

Betty
I'll read the news more.

David
I'll learn to snowboard.

Holly
I'll learn how to repair my own bike.

Frank
I'll prepare lunch for my family! (At least once!)

George
I'll go to the dentist.

Oliver
I'll send more messages to my cousin who's at college in the USA.

Richard
I'll prepare my school uniform before I go to bed each night!

Sarah
I won't be late for school!

Sophia
I won't get angry when my parents ask me to tidy my room!

William
I'll make sure I help my parents more with their business.

- 2 Ask your classmates what they will change this month. Then write six sentences in your notebook.

I'll start playing tennis.

I'll make sure I do my homework on time.

My friend Jane will start playing tennis.
